Alma Historica, Montevideo, Uruguay

A sophisticated retreat in Old City

This new boutique gem opened in December in the heart of Montevideo's Old City. Inside the former mansion-turned-hotel, a grand curved staircase leads to 15 rooms and suites, each with an individual, eclectic design inspired by Uruguay's rich history. In the Jose Belloni room, shades of green and beige channel the outdoor bronze sculptures created by this famous artist. Sky-blue hues represent the beautiful Uruguayan sky in the Cesareo Berisso room—named for the country's first aviator, who crossed the River Plate via balloon. Outside the hotel, the historic city center unfolds in a walkable grid of cafés and restaurants, antique shops and theaters. And with 13 museums just a short distance from the property, Alma provides the perfect base for culture and fun. Rates start at $185. ALMAHISTORICAHOTEL.COM

The Beaumont, London

Public art as private bolt-hole

Chris Corbin and Jeremy King are the emperors of London dining, operating a portfolio of Parisian brasserie-style restaurants that are some of the buzziest places in town. Now the pair has moved into hotels. Opened at the end of last year in the Downton-esque neighborhood of Mayfair, the Beaumont is an entirely new structure fronted by a 1920s facade. Interiors are pastiche period, with the 73 bedrooms and suites done out in masculine Art Deco style. The real show stealer, though, is "Room," which is an incredible self-contained one-bedroom suite within a three-story-high cuboid giant crouching in front of the facade. It was designed by sculptor Antony Gormley, and rates start at $3,370 a night. Standard room rates start at $590. THEBEAUMONT.COM

The Ritz-Carlton, San Francisco

Historic hotel, chic new style

The iconic 1909 Ritz-Carlton, San Francisco, still maintains its grand, neoclassical appearance, but step inside for a surprise: The interiors of this Nob Hill landmark have been completely renovated. When it reopens this March, guests will be welcomed by a new, bolder, more modern aesthetic: In the lobby, sleek lines and patterned rugs set the contemporary tone, while blue, gray and silver accents bring the drama of the city skyline into the guest rooms. The property will also include the boutique Jean-Charles Boisset Wine Tasting Salon catering to vino lovers looking for rare blends and an intimate atmosphere. Rates start at $479.
